

About PCS

Over the last 40 years, Pet Cremation Services (PCS) has built an excellent reputation within the small animal veterinary market place. This reputation has been developed by offering our clients a wide range of essential services that include animal, clinical and hazardous waste disposal, as well as offering practices an extensive list of associated supplies.

Pet cremation is at the heart of PCS's business. We have now become the UK's largest dedicated pet crematorium group and this growth is a reflection of everyone's commitment at PCS to our standard of service and customer care.

Our core clients are individual and group veterinary practices from across the country, who offer our dignified cremation services to the public, via the operation of our regular collections. In the process, the company has built up a well deserved reputation as a responsible and essential partner for the veterinary practitioner.

At PCS, we recognize the importance of delivering the highest standards of service in what is a difficult and often delicate area. This is reflected at all stages of our business, from the company's sensitively produced literature through to the attitudes of every member of staff and is the main reason why we are opening more local sites nationally that can provide you with the right level of support at a time when you need it.

"Over the years my group of practices have enjoyed working with PCS. I have been entirely satisfied with the high quality of service and complete professionalism that PCS brings to every aspect in servicing the group"
